

TECHNICIAN

Oil and natural gas industry technicians assist engineers, geologists, geophysicists and other industry professionals with various technical tasks, including data loading, database management and mapping.

Typical Educational Requirements: Range from specified technical course completion, Associate's degrees and Bachelor's degrees.

Occupations

Drilling Technician: Assists drilling engineers with technical tasks and data management. High school degree/GED required; Associate's degree preferred.

Engineering Technician: Assist various types of engineers with technical tasks and data management. Associates degree required.

Geoscience Technician: Assist geologists and geophysicists with various technical tasks, including data loading, database management and mapping. Associate's degree required.

Land Mapping Technician: Assists land negotiators with negotiations and administrative tasks, such as title work, correspondence with landowners and agencies. Associates degree required; Bachelor's degree preferred.

Production Technician: Provides administrative support to a field operation, such as daily production reporting, filing, invoice coding and mail distribution. High school degree/GED required; Associate's degree preferred.